

NURSING PROGRAM- ASN

The Nursing, Associate in Science (ASN) degree is a limited access program. Acceptance into the program requires a separate application process in addition to College admission. Interested students must review the program information packet which includes program core application requirements and selection criteria. Program application preparation packets provide additional information and calendars specific to each program acceptance opportunity.

Students access program specific and application information at <https://www.lssc.edu/dept/nursing/asn-overview2/>.

Students select program track based on pre-licensure status. General Track contains two options based on timing for completion of pre-requisite courses. Program graduates obtain RN licensure through successful completion of the NCLEX-RN.
